

Liability insurance ... are you protected when workmen come to your home?

According to Coverzones* around 92% of people working in the gas fitting industry are not covered for damage to customer's property as a result of their work.

This comes just weeks after the Health & Safety Executive (HSE) released information that 20,000 illegal gas fitters are operating in the UK, and advising registered fitters to purchase professional indemnity (PI) insurance to reassure homeowners of their professionalism.

"Operating as a franchisor gas-elec take issues like this very seriously, which is why all of our engineers are individually covered to protect them and their customers," says John Davidson, managing director of gas-elec.

John went on to advise that it is always best to ensure that the engineer has the necessary insurance in place prior to commencing with the job so that you are protected in the case of injury or damage to your property.

"Check with the company's head office to put your mind at ease!"

* Coverzones analysed a sample of 4,500 requests for insurance quotes.

ENDS/...
